Home brow, wood a and deadly conceptions of a harddred kinds have taken a heavy tall in the last year or two and are taking it still. Even Canada, which many Americans mistakenly regard as a sort of alcoholic paradise, an d which is now nearly all legally as dry as this country, tells the same story. A Canadian newspaper remarked lately that "en far as the ordinary citizen is concerned, there is no pure whiskey in the world now

As the knowledge of this fact spreads, it has more effect than preaching. Observers say that lately there are signs of diminution in drinking, and in bootingging. Taking a drink furtively is not so much of a joke any more, since it has often proved to be a tragedy. Respect for prohibition or guining, less from consciontious observance than from fear of death.
